

Hi friends.

Says Lesaya -

“Take two Californians, 9 New Yorkers and plant their feet in Kurland, South Africa.

Mix in a fair dose of God’s love and compassion and you have a group of people who have fallen completely in love with the children of Kurland and the people of South Africa. If “the sands of Africa” run between your toes, I’m told you always return. This is what the team felt. The children captured our hearts in a way that goes beyond words. So, to describe a program pales in comparison. Our work party completed the touch up of the new safe house, our team worked with the Royal Rangers in the afternoons and the younger kids at Kid’s Explosion on Fridays. We did things that hopefully leave a deposit. But the program does not begin to tell of the simple truth and power that lies in this – in some small way, God let us build into lives the life and love of Jesus.

The children of Kurland are hungry for the reality of God. Also for the reality of a true and genuine love. In some ways this is not unusual to children all over the world and teenagers desperately crying out for a meaningful identity. The difference is that for most of these kids they are working from such an unbelievable deficit that can only be expressed in a touch that goes beyond words which absolutely reinforces the power of God in the faithful who work day by day, 24/7. People like Kathy who has given her life-blood to this ministry. For Kathy, and people like the house mothers who work unseen, we offer our heartfelt prayers for a continued divine enabling. One life touches another and little by little, God is able to impact and change a nation of youth. Every cent given to enable others to go and continue the work, every prayer offered – all of this comes together in an offering before Him. And then it’s up to Him. The God-factor. The reason we came and the reason we’ll come back again. God bless South Africa!”

In turn I would like to add – Jesus said that He came to serve and not to be served and “I came to be the Servant of all.” To me that is always the earmark of a follower of Jesus Christ". To follow Christ must become a life-style, not a set of does and don'ts.

These ladies and gentleman did just that. They exhibited Christ and for that I salute them. God bless your coming in and going out.

With their coming here they brought the good news of Grace Ministries setting a large sum of money available for the purchase of a Mini Bus. We are overjoyed as it is an absolute necessity. We are trusting God for the balance to come in shortly. It is all in His care. - Lots of love Kathy.
